DOWLING'S MEDITERRANEAN III CONFERENCE (BARCELONA)

31 July and 1-2 August 1978

Owing to the academic success of the Mediterranean II Conference at the Royal University of Malta in June, 1976, Professor Norman Holub, Iberian Studies, Dowling College, in collaboration with Professor Pedro Voltes Bou, Department of Economic History, University of Barcelona, is organizing the Mediterranean III Conference in Barcelona, 31 July and 1-2 August 1978. Mediterranean III Barcelona, sponsored by the Institut Municipal d'Historia de Barcelona, Dowling College and the Del Mar Foundation (Washington, D.C.), will emphasize recent research in Iberia and other lands of the Mediterranean basin. Catalan and Balearic Studies will constitute one session and a broader and more comprehensive Mediterranean session(s) will form the program. Papers on the historical, economic, sociological, anthropological, political science and physical science incorporating these themes are now being requested. Participation in Barcelona will consist of a fifteen minute summary research paper. The completed paper will be handed in during the conference or not too long afterwards. To participate in the conference send a tentative/final paper with a brief summary to:

Norman Holub
 Director, Mediterranean III Conference
 Dowling College
 Oakdale, N.Y. 11769

Also, Dowling College and the Royal University of Malta announce the publication of Contributions to Mediterranean Studies, a volume of 23 articles focusing primarily on Iberian and Maltese topics. The journal represents the publications of the papers delivered at the Mediterranean II Symposium in Malta, June 1976 which was organized and co-directed by Professor Norman Holub and Mario Vassallo (R.U.M.). For a copy of the publication send a check for $34.00 to Dowling College at the above address.

NINTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE CENTER FOR MEDIEVAL AND RENAISSANCE STUDIES: 24-25 February 1978

"Conflict and Contact in Medieval Iberia: the phenomenon of the Reconquista" was the theme of the Ninth Annual Conference of the Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies at Ohio State University, 24-25 February 1978. Objectives of the conference were to increase interest in and respect for the culture of the Iberian peninsula in the later Middle Ages and to develop wider knowledge of an area too often neglected by medievalists oriented to the more northern cultures of Europe. The conference also stressed the religious and cultural heterogeneity of Iberia and the ways in which interchange between the differing groups helped to create the medieval Spanish culture.

Topics and participants in the conference were:

Friday, 24 February

10:00-11:00

Robert I. Burns S.J., Senior Professor of History, University of California at Los Angeles

"Conflict and Contact in 13th-Century Mediterranean Spain"

11:30-12:30

Stephan Gilman, Professor of Romance Languages, Harvard University

"A Generation of Conversos"

2:00-3:00

Walter B. Denny, Associate Professor of Art History, University of Massachusetts at Amherst

"The Movement of Artistic Styles Across the Christian-Islamic Frontier in Medieval Spain"

3:30-4:30

George Makdisi, Chairman for the Department of Oriental Studies and Professor of Arabic and Islamic Studies, University of Pennsylvania

"Education in Muslim Spain as Compared with France and Italy"

Saturday, 25 February

10:00-11:00

Margit Frenk, Professor and Director of Centro de Estudios
Lingüísticos y Literarios, El Colegio de México

"Hispano-Arabic and Romance Poetry: a Merging of Tradition?"

11:30-12:30

J.N. Hillgarth, Senior Fellow of the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies, Toronto

"Looking Back from 1500: the Catholic Monarchs and the Spanish Past"

2:00-3:30

The Speakers, chaired by Lowanne E. Jones, Assistant Director of the Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies

"Conflict and Contact in Medieval Iberia: the phenomenon of the Reconquista"

RESEARCH CENTER FOR THE ARTS

The College of Fine and Applied Arts at the University of Texas at San Antonio announces the establishment of the Research Center for the Arts, under the direction of Jacinto Quirarte, Dean of the College of Fine and Applied Arts. Judith Berg Sobré (Art History) and Michael Fink (Musicology) are faculty associates connected with the Center; Elizabeth Hill Boone (Art History) is research associate.

Visual and performing arts (studio art, architecture and music), art and architectural history, art criticism, and musicology are the Center's main activities. A primary focus of the Center is on the latter disciplines with special reference to the study of Iberian and Interamerican arts.

Among the goals of the Center are to provide assistance to faculty, students, and other persons interested in pursuing research and furthering studies, and to make available general information on the arts of Spain, Portugal, and the Americas. A major goal of the center is the identification of those areas in the study of Iberian and Interamerican art and music in which further research is needed. To this end, the Center plans to organize a series of conferences that will establish the states of disciplines of art history and musicology in relation to the study of these areas and that will focus on particular issues pertaining to Iberia and Interamerica.

For further information concerning the Research Center write:

SPANISH PRONUNCIATION GUIDE AVAILABLE

The Linguistic Research Foundation will send, upon request, a free copy of its "Linguistic Guide to Teaching Spanish Pronunciation" to any member of the SSPHS interested. This brochure discusses the points of conflict between the English and Spanish sound systems, and provides practice exercises for the English speaker to overcome this conflict.

In order to expedite the Foundation's response, the Foundation urges members to enclose with their request a stamped, self-addressed No. 10 envelope. The address of the Foundation is:

Linguistic Research Foundation
 P.O. Box 1012
 San Diego, California 92112

Current Research

The BULLETIN urges members to submit for publication reports on all aspects of their research on the history, sociology, anthropology, politics, and economics of Spain and Portugal. Members should use the form included with this BULLETIN to report all recent publications (books, monographs and articles, published or accepted for publication), research in progress, and grants and fellowships. In order for the BULLETIN to serve as a bibliographical aid that is as accurate as possible, members are urged to be specific concerning details of publication.

Dissertations

SPAIN:

Johns Hopkins University

Director of Dissertation: Richard L. Kagan

Peterson, Arthur F., "The Mallorcan Aristocracy and the Crown, 1621-1641."

The role of a provincial aristocracy in the years when the Spanish monarchy was attempting to enlist the support of all the provinces in its ambition to regain control of the low countries and to continue to pursue traditional Hapsburg objectives elsewhere in Europe is the theme of this dissertation. This call for cooperation, especially in the matter of furnishing troops, reportedly sparked opposition in the provinces; but, so far the only province studied is Catalonia, which revolted. Nothing is known about the other provinces; this dissertation attempts to fill a small part of that void. Also, this dissertation studies Spanish government from the provincial perspective rather than the traditional view from the center. Finally, this paper hopes to illuminate Mallorca's place in Spanish history.

PORTUGAL: EARLY

University of New Mexico

Director of Dissertation: Robert Kern

Hanson, Carl A., "Economy and Society in Baroque Portugal, 1668-1703."

Based on research in Portuguese archives that was funded by the Gulbenkian Foundation, the study first examines the social structure of early modern Portugal and then provides reinterpretation of the suppression of the mercantile class efforts to obtain relief from inquisitional persecution. Examination of changes in the seventeenth century Portuguese mercantilist thought follows. Succeeding chapters focus on the short-lived manufacturing program, colonial and international commerce, especially that in tobacco, and the negotiations leading to the Methuen Treaty. Concluding comments emphasize imperial Portugal's relationship with core-states such as England.

If the Hispanic Society is no longer exempt, then all assets shall go to the Library of Congress.

EDITOR'S NOTE

This edition of the BULLETIN was produced in unlit, unheated offices on the seventh floor of a building without elevator service. Due to the coal shortage in the state of Indiana, Indiana University is now operating at 50% of its normal energy supply and will close completely from March 4 through March 27. In order to meet the accelerated publishing schedule necessitated by the University's closing, some sections of the BULLETIN have been omitted from this issue. They will appear in the first issue after the annual meeting in Chicago. We regret any inconvenience this may cause our members, who have been most prompt and generous in contributing news and bibliographical articles for publication.
